Opening the Championship Season.A Well-Taught Lesson-The Black Pearl-Murgen Mill To-Night-Selecting a Steferce-General Notes,

The opening game on Saturday was semewhat in the nature of a surprise to those who expected the local team to defeat the visitors with comparative ease, for the boys from Hartford got away with the game by a score of 15 to 13. The new grounds were crowded, about 3,200 people being present, many of them well-known citizens in public and private life. It was a distinguished gathering and the largest in numbers that has ever attended an opening game. Defeat in the presence of such a crowd made it doubly worse.

There can be but little said about the game. The local team took such a long lead at the beginning of the game that it thought it had a snap and could afford to play loosely and carelessly, and almost before the men realized it the visitors pulled down the lead. Then Gleason's men grew nervous, and con-tributed to their opponents' score by a number of very saffpn-hued errors. Sullivan likewise is largely responsible for the loss of the game. Had he not experimented with all his pitchers, and been satisfied with the game as it stood without taking chances, all would have been well. However, the loss of the game does not make any very material difference, and it is a lesson that ought to have a good effect. It should teach the players and manager that the game is never won until it is over, and that to take chances such as characterized Saturday's game jeopardizes the result and often turns what should be a well-earned victory into defeat.

The Hartfords are entitled to considerable credit for the plucky up hill fight they made. The team is a good one, and is especially strong in batting. The same teams play again to-day, and a first class game can be expected.

Phillips and Fagan will be the opposing nitchers. Of course the Brotherhood clubs largely outdrew the League teams at the opening games on Saturday, and already the jubilant followers of the players are claiming that the League is not in it. It would be interesting to know just how much paper went into the Brotherhood grounds. The League's opening attendance was fully up to what it has been in previous years, and it represents paid admissions. Look at the figures a month from this time, and then you will find out that the League will be drawing the crowds. The hur-rah policy is not going to carry the Piayers' League out of the woods by a large majority. A pitcher that can give fourteen bases on balls and have twelve hits made off him, and then win his game, as Winkleman did on Saturday, deserves considerable praise.

Judging by the crowd at Saturday's game, Mr. Hewitt did not make such a mistake after all in the location of his new grounds. The Buffalo Brotherhood club. formerly the Washington stiffs, managed to win a game on Saturday in first class shape. The New Havens play here three days, beginning on Wednesday. Mace has been released by the local club. He has signed with the Rich-monds and will join that team on Wednesday.

Both are in good condition and many people expect a rattling good fight. The Pearl is the favorite in the betting and has the advantage of having par-ticipated in a number of ring fights, while his opponent is comparatively a novice. What he lacks in this respect, however, he is said to make up in gomeness, and his backers profess to believe that he will give the Pearl the hardest fight he has ever had, even if he does not win it. The fight will take place on the Virginia side of the river, a short distance from this city. There will undoubtedly be a large crowd present and they should be amply re-paid for their trouble.

The Northedge-McMillan fight is also scheduled for this week, and will come off on next Thursday morning, within fifty miles of this city. The battle-ground has been selected about twenty-five miles down the river. The start will be made about 10 o'clock and the will be made about 10 o'clock and the men will be in the ring by 1 o'clock. The fight is attracting more attention in this city than any similar e-cat and will probably be witnessed by a larger crowd than any ring fight near here. Fully 500 people will be at the ring-side. The betting is very lively, and considerable money, at even odds, is going up. Jack Hopper, who is training with Northedge, will be in George's corner and will be assisted by Ned Donnelly. McMillan has not yet announced his seconds. has not yet announced his seconds. The selection of a referee may cause some delay, although a proposition will be made by McMillan to-night to have some sporting paper select a man who is not prejudiced by local interests. Stanley Explains and Gots There,

From the Wilkesborre Ecuning Leader. Explorer Stanley seems to be having a warm time explaining things, but the wise observer notes behind all this the fact that he is at the same time securing a big lot of free advertising for his fortheening book.

Unselfish Man-"Oh, no, dear Algy! I love you far too dearly to let your poverty stand in the way of our union; but do you think we shall be able to live happily on £150 a year?" My Dear Clorinda—'I swear to you, by all that I hold most dear, to make your life a bed of roses-even if we have to do with-out a servant." - Funny Folks,

CHEWED OFF HIS FINGERS.

The cranks and those unfortunates who are sent to the workbouse after being on a protracted spree and are attacked by delirium tremens as a result, are assigned to wards I and 2 in the contiguous hospital, where in many cases it has been necessary to strap them down to their iron cots. A Carrie reporter to-day met Jeremiah Brookes, above wards, and he called attention to the necessity of the authorities of the workhouse paying closer attention to the cases of men brought there in a state of alcoholic excitement who are liable to be attacked with delirium tramens. Such men, he thinks, should be closely watched, and any symptoms of the tremens promptly reported to the resident physician.

Brookes recited one case as an illustration of this necessity. It was that of George Bolder, a colored barber, who was arrested on a trivial charge just after he had been drinking heavily for several weeks. Bolder was taken with symptoms of the dreaded disorder while up stairs in his cells. The guards noticed his queer behavior, and thinking he was only acting in an obstreperous manner to get out of doing any work, hustled him down into the underground dungeon where it is so inky dark that a man's eyes are of no use to him. This served to bring on the delerium tremens in their most aggravated form, and the frantic Bolder chewed off the ends of all his fingers and bumped his head and face against the walls of the dark and narrow dungeon until he had cut and lacerated bluself in a terrible manner and was a mass of blood. When the guards found him he was in a deplorable condition, and after he was taken to the hospital his condition was considered serious by Dr. Mohun, the attending physician, Ex-Nurse Brookes also said that few of the bodies of the unfortunates who die in the workhouse hospital ever go into the graves dug for them in Potter's field. After they are left in the deadfor twenty-four hours without being called for by relatives or friends they are taken away and appropriated for dissecting room purposes by the agents of medical colleges.

TUNNELING TO THE VAULTS. A Detective Says That is the Only Way to Rob the Treasury.

Referring to the proposed reconstruction of the great silver vaults in the Treasury building, Detective John Lane, formerly of London, England, said to a CRITIC reporter to day that in his opinion there was only one suc-cessful way of making a wholesale robbery of the vaults. There could be no successful entry through the doorways, either during the night or daytime. There is a large force of watch-men employed, and all of them are armed and could be concenheavily trated at any point very quickly. Then, too, an alarm could be given and the reserve force of metropolitan police, the regulars and marines, if necessary. could be summoned to repel an in-

"The only way the vaults could be robbed of a large amount of money would be by tunneling," he said. "The thieves could rent a building near the Treasury as a base of operations and commence their subterranean work in the cellar, continuing until they have burrowed directly under the vaults. But you see this would not only be a very difficult undertaking, but it would be dangerous, and the thieves might get caught at the ninety-ninth hour, after they had been hard at work for weeks and months. And in addition to this the job would have to be mapped out scientifically and superintended by a skillful engineer."

Mr. Lane recited several instances in

A NEW WILD HORSE.

Dellrium Tremens and Dead Paupers | The Animal Discovered in Central Asia The great Russian traveler, Prezevalsky, has discovered a new wild horse, more nearly allied to the domestic horse than any previous known species. Prezevalsky, on his return from Central Asia, brought with him one of these new species. The horse is described as having warts on his hind legs as well as on his fore legs, and has bard hoofs like the true horse. long hairs of the tail, instead of commencing at the base, do not begin until about half way down the tail In this respect the animal is intermediate between the horse and the ass. It is also different from the typical horse in having a short, erect mane and hav-ing a forelock. It has no dorsal stripe, which though by no means universal, is often found in the typical horse, and is almost always present in the ass. Its whole general color is of a whitish gray, paler and whiter beneath and reddish on the head. The legs are reddish to the knees and then blackish down to the hoofs. It is of small stature, but the legs are very thick and strong, and the head is large and heavy.

The cars are smaller than those of the ass. This horse was found on the great Dsungarian Desert, between the Altai and Tianschan Mountains, where it is called by the Tartars kertag, and by the Mongols stafur. It is met in troops of from five to fifteen individuals led by the old stallion. They are very shy, with highly developed organs of sight and smell. Prezevalsky's specimen was overtaken and shot in the winter. when water was plentiful from melted snow. But for this it could not have been followed at all, as it frequents the waterless districts.

During the whole time of his stay in the Dsungarian Desert Prezevalsky met with only two herds of this wil horse. He and his companions fired into a herd, but missed, and, with uplifted head and outstretched tail, the stallion led the way with the speed of the winds. The second herd met with was surprised. It was approached from one side of the hill, and, when within 150 yards, a shot was fired, which broke the leg of a mare, and it was captured. This specimen is now in the museum of the Academy of Science at St. Petersburg, and is the only one of this species in Europe.

CONQUERED NATURE,

Woman Who, Though a Deaf Mute. is Entirely Happy.

From the New York Star. An Auburn, Me., woman, who is a deaf mute, furnishes an excellent example of what can be done to triumph over the afflictions of nature. She is a splendid housekeeper and has about the most beautiful collection of house plants in the city. Her husband is also a deaf mute, but their child-a ome dark-eyed 2-year-old-will probably talk when she comes to mingle vith other children, as she says bye" and other childish phrases now. One of the most interesting things about this lady is her mode of com municating with others.

Of course this is mostly done by writing and very quaint are some of the idioms she uses. But she frequently resorts to pantomime and some of her ways are very ingenious. To express sleep she shuts her eyes and buries the side of her head in her hand; the same for death with an additional horizontal motion through the Even the dog she has understands her and will come when she raps for him. So her life is not unhappy.

MONEY IN THE POCKETBOOK.

People Who Remembered It Was April 1 Wouldn't Touch It-From the Cincinnati Enguirer. A great many people who passed a pocketbook lying in front of a cigar store at 512 Vine street yesterday, and reflected upon their wisdom in general as regards "April fool" jokes in particular, will metaphorically kick themselves when they read this article.

That pocketbook contained just $20.37, and was dropped there by Mr. Adam Schrader of the "Gondollers" Opera Company. It was not dropped as a first of April pleasantry. It lay ever an bour on the sidewalk before Charles Pros, a young man who had forgotten that it was the 1st of April, came along and picked it up. When he pulled a roll of greenbacks out of it the population of the entire neighborhood, which had been watchling the young man and desperately keeping down an assortment of bysterical giggles within its respective anatomies, pulled its various hats over its eyes and went out into its adjoining back yards to indulge in reflections.

Pros turned the pocketbook over to Special Officer Messersmith, who returned it to its owner, whose name was it. Mr. Schrader sent Pros a handsome reward. A BRAVE GROUSE, a Snapping Cap, From Forest and Stream. On one occasion, in company with my brother, I had gone to the woods and was there to wait for a farmer, at whose house we had stopped over night and who was to come on later with foxthat day. We had got out of the road which ran through the forest and over a rail fence and were standing under a large hemlock when we heard a ruffled grouse in the distance.

He came directly toward us and alighted on the ground about forty away. There was a small gully or water course between us and the bird Before he struck the ground he had taken about two thirds of a circle to break his lightning-like flight. As soon as he hit he straightened up and took a survey. He soon saw us, but in-stead of again flying he swelled up in a most pompous manner. Never had I seen a grouse appear larger or more magnificent. My brother looked at me and I suggested that he snap a cap at him. Neither of our muzzle loaders were charged. At the sound of the first cap the grouse slightly shook himself, but seemed to swell his breast out more. My brother continued taking caps from his pocket and snapping them at the grouse, bringing his gun up each time and taking deliberate aim until nine were exploded. The grouse seemed to like the sound and to be fascinated by it and the scene generally. The man coming down the road with the dogs alarmed him, and turning he ran several feet and took wing, and we heard him going through the thick evergreens away in the distance.

Grant's Inherent Greatness.

From the Rochester Herald The terms of surrender imposed by Grant will always be distinguished for the magnanimity and generosity they displayed. They constitute one among the many proofs of his inherent great-ness. The clouds of subsequent politidetraction could never eclipse shining qualities that were manifested on this and on all the great occasions of his splendid military career. Dignified as was Lee in that conference at Appomattox, he must ever appear subordinate to the simple manliness of the heroic soldier, who, in the moment of suprem est triumph, betrayed no sign of a
